

[Read ebook] Doing Business in Newly Privatized Markets: Global Opportunities and Challenges

Doing Business in Newly Privatized Markets: Global Opportunities and Challenges

Russell Miller

Download PDF / ePub / DOC / audiobook / ebooks*

DOWNLOAD

READ ONLINE

#4001139 in eBooks 2000-08-30 2000-08-30 File Name: B000QE5MDU | File size: 37.Mb

Russell Miller : Doing Business in Newly Privatized Markets: Global Opportunities and Challenges before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Doing Business in Newly Privatized Markets: Global Opportunities and Challenges:

1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. Interesting and informative look at privatized companiesBy Mark

Kneedy, CEO Italian based ADB International IncI enjoyed Miller's book because it examines privatization from a business perspective rather than the usual view of government agencies and multilateral organizations. He clearly describes the relative risks and rewards of dealing with former government owned firms and the strategies that produce the best results. 1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. Miller knows his stuffBy barbara edingtonA hot topic covered by someone who really knows the business. Tells the whole story, including the challenges. The complex topic of privatization is detailed and thought provoking. Takes the topic of international business to new depths.

During the past decade, thousands of former state-controlled companies in more than 100 different countries have entered the private sector. These firms range in size and commercial significance from small family-owned kiosks in Russia to some of the largest, most influential corporations in Western and Central Europe, Latin America, and Asia. Miller provides a comprehensive, business-oriented perspective on the origin and geographic expansion of the privatization movement, and describes the methods that governments use and the objectives they hope to achieve in the divestment of state assets. He identifies the formative influences on these new companies, as well as the operating needs created by the privatization process. Privatization-intensive markets are examined in relation to their importance, type of companies involved, and the challenges they present. Miller's book also discusses alternate methods of market expansion, such as reaching newly privatized firms through a strategic marketing program. His book will be essential reading for academicians and graduate students in international business and world trade, as well as their practitioner counterparts in corporations and multilateral development agencies.

"The result is a rich and useful study of the vast new global markets now opening up, and insights into how corporations here and abroad can access them and benefit from them. This book is essential reading for top-level corporate executives with aspirations abroad, and for their marketing, strategic planning, and international business development staffs."-Logistics Books?The result is a rich and useful study of the vast new global markets now opening up, and insights into how corporations here and abroad can access them and benefit from them. This book is essential reading for top-level corporate executives with aspirations abroad, and for their marketing, strategic planning, and international business development staffs.?-Logistics BooksAbout the AuthorRUSSELL R. MILLER has held management positions in marketing and strategic planning for ATT, General Electric, Unisys, Ampex, Boeing, and for 20 years was Senior Vice President of International Marketing for Zenith Electronics./e Now an international marketing consultant based in LaGrange, Illinois, he has been an adviser to the World Bank and various United Nations agencies, centering on privatization, enterprise restructuring, and industry conversion. Miller has been affiliated with the Economic Policy Council of the United Nations Association of the U.S., The United States District Export Council, The Pan American Advisory Council and served on the boards of directors of companies in Venezuela, Mexico, and the Philippines.